

HARVARD PROGRAMS RECEIVED C.I.A. HELP

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 15 (UPI)—A Harvard University report shows that 13 programs at the university received a total of $456,000 in funds from organizations acting as conduits for the Central Intelligence Agency.

The report, released Friday, was made by Humphrey Doermann, assistant to Franklin L. Ford, dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

Mr. Ford, who succeeded former Presidential advisor, Mr. McGeorge Bundy as dean, said no strings were attached to the funds.

The report said the funds were given to programs and to individual professors in the departments of psychology, philosophy and social relations for research from 1960 to 1966.

The programs included the international seminar of the summer school. Henry A. Kissinger, executive director of the seminar, acknowledged receiving $135,000. Mr. Kissinger said he was unaware that the intelligence agency had given partial support to the seminar.

The report said 15 organizations had been involved in channeling funds to the school.
